ABSTRACT

Computer-implemented method and apparatus for processing data representing a three-dimensional object model includes generating an image of a modeled object. The modeled object is formed from a number of different components that can be arranged in 5   different positions, and the generated image depicts a change in a position of a first one of the components with respect to a second one of the components.